GAME-LAW BREAKERS.

Mr. Pot Hunter and the Gun Club Call for the Guilty Ones.

CARSON, Nev., Sept. 1, 1890.

ED. APPEAL: Dear Sir:—As there has been considerable talk about the "pot hunters" around Washoe lake and Carson river by so-called "experts of the Gun Club," I would most respectfully ask for the names of the parties referred to.

A crowd of four sportsmen belonging to the "Gun Club" left here the other day (prior to the exclusion arrangement) and they brought in a number of duck. Is this right? Cannot any other party do the same thing?

Yours Very Respectfully,
 POT HUNTER.

The question now arises as to who the guilty parties are, and if Mr. Pot Hunter will come forward with the proofs, the members of the Gun Club who have so maliciously broken the laws of the State and gone back on their pledge to the Gun Club, will be expelled from the membership roll at the next meeting, provided the accuser can substantiate his statements.

The Gun Club has made a special effort to detect non-members in any act of this kind, and will be equally vigilant in prosecuting members, who have so far forgotten themselves.

An APPEAL reporter interviewed several members, and they are unanimous in their denunciations. At the next meeting which will be advertised in the APPEAL, our correspondent is requested to appear, make his charges and prove the same.

The action of the club will be satisfactory, and an impartial hearing will be given both sides.

About McCormack.

Not very much is known of Keogh's opponent in this section, but Matt Brannan, the Carson champion, who will go behind him in Virginia Wednesday night, saw him in Reno the other day and says if he is any judge McCormack looks like a first-class man to bet on. He is big, hard muscled and clever, with plenty of quickness and staying qualities to go on. A man in this city, who has known McCormack personally for years, says he is not the man to go into a "job" under any consideration.

While in Glenbrook, Keogh was heard to remark that he expected to have the hardest fight of his career.

With the above facts in view, it looks as if the meeting of the two at Piper's Opera House on Wednesday night will be a lively affair.

A Pioneer's Burial.

Edward Robinson, the old Lake Tahoe pioneer, who died on the 29th of cholera, was buried Sunday at Glenbrook, Rev. Geo. R. Davis officiating.

Friends and acquaintances came from all parts of the Lake, bearing funeral offerings to cover the coffin of the deceased.

Robinson was a man of strict business principles, whose word was as good as his bond. No one ever knew Edward Robinson who was sorry for it, and as the old man was laid away in nature's graveyard, with the tall pines bending in the wind and the rocks echoing back the voice of the minister, many a face was turned away from the grave, and tears of genuine sorrow trickled down the cheeks of the sturdy mountaineers who well knew the hospitality of his bed and board, and the friend they were losing.

The sympathy of the community is with his good wife and family, who extend thanks to those who were so kind to them.

After the service the infant son of M. M. Fall was buried in the same graveyard, and Glenbrook on that day was the scene of much sorrow.

Johnny Get Your Gun.

Today being the period of the annual let-up on the game law, ducks, geese and all that sort of feathered favorites are at the mercy of the hunters. Fildoyle, Colatherton and other prominent Carson sports staid away from church yesterday getting their guns and things ready, and were camped on the most eligible shore of Washoe Lake at midnight with plenty of ammunition—solid and liquid—and red slaughter in their eyes.—Chronicle.

R. M. Thompson, Manager of the Trade and Commerce Publishing Company, is in the city interesting himself in the publication of a review of the agricultural, mineral and other resources of this State. The book is to be handsomely illustrated and contains information that will be of interest to our sister States and the population of the entire country.

It is needless for this journal to say anything about Prof. C. Norris, as he was here a year ago. But the APPEAL wants to impress upon the public that the Millar Bros. are at the head of their profession, having over 600 views of the world.

The Indians say there will be an immense crop of pine-huts this year.

WHAT ON EARTH—Is the reason people will not, cannot, or do not see any difference in cheap trunks put up by Cheap John houses or irresponsible parties at enormous profits, rather than take a medicine of world wide reputation and one that is giving universal satisfaction at equal price?
